

Building Power through Community Organising

On this course you will explore and develop your understanding of power, which is what drives community organising: what power means and how power can be built in communities to overcome social injustice and create change.

Using fun and thought-provoking activities, and thinking about our own lives, we will think about the different types and effects of power and look at the ways that people can build power together through community organising.

During this course you will explore

- your personal power and ability to act
- how power is exercised in society
- what it means to organise for change
- how to begin to pinpoint the causes of social injustice
- how to build power with others through community organising

“The main message that stood out for me was of community organisers gaining collective power of people.”

More information

The course also provides a reminder of the basics of community organising, which are covered in our Introduction to Community Organising course. If you haven't been on our Introduction course, we would encourage you to do this before signing up to our Power course.

The course lasts for 7 hours. Like all of our training, it is inspiring and interactive. It is designed so that everybody can take part, share their ideas and experiences and practice their skills.

"I enjoyed the discussions about power, they gave me a better understanding about society and empowering people."

This course is run by Community Organisers Ltd for Brighton and Hove Community Land Trust and funded by DCMS as part of the Community Organisers Expansion programme.

The course trainers are experienced and committed Community Organisers. The course is approved as quality training provision by Certa and as approved CPD. All participants receive a Certificate of Participation.

Further one-day courses are available focusing on practical aspects of community organising, plus longer courses for those who want to train as fully qualified community organisers.
